Each year, a group of enthusiastic, responsible, and aware undergraduate students are selected to help guide incoming students through the transition from high school to college. In this capacity, they serve as resources for new students and their parent & family members; they assist WU staff with planning and implementing Bear Beginnings: New Student Fall Orientation as well as fall and spring events and programs that are both academic and social in content. They are viewed as student leaders among the University community. WUSAs play a key role in making the first-year experience a rewarding, fun, and successful welcome to the WU community.

WUSAs are crucial to the academic, personal, cultural, and social integration of students into the WU community throughout the first year. They serve as role models for new students. In addition, first-year applicants partner with the resident advisors in building community through participation in residential college and Wash U events.

Selection as a WUSA is both a unique honor and rewarding opportunity for personal leadership development and professional growth. Recognized by the University administration and faculty for their worthy assistance and the energy and motivation they bring to their work with our first-year students, this team of leaders has a significant amount of responsibility as well as many privileges. As a vital member of this dynamic team, WUSAs enjoy a memorable experience while providing a valuable service to the University community.

The WUSA position requires motivated student leaders who have a strong interest in assisting new students with their transition to the Washington University community. WUSAs should exhibit a genuine concern for others. Successful staff members are able to both complete tasks autonomously and work with a co-WUSA and team of other student leaders.
